

Contents

List of Figures and Tables 17

Conversion Statistics..... 18

List of Abbreviations..... 19

1 Introduction 23

2 Analyzing Processes of Political Transformation 35

2.1 Analysis of System Change from the Perspective of Comparative Political Science 36

2.1.1 System Typologies 36

2.1.2 Phasing and Typologies of Transformation..... 40

2.1.3 The Question of System Consolidation 44

2.1.4 Potential of Political Culture Studies for Analyzing Democratization.. 47

2.1.5 ‘Deficient Democracies’ - Recognizing the Lack of a Concept 50

2.2 Analyses of Economic and Political Transformation from the Perspective of Development Policy Studies 54

2.2.1 Simultaneous Economic and Political Transformation 55

2.2.2 Shaping Simultaneous Transformation through ‘Good Governance’ ... 59

2.2.3 Potential and Limitations of Devolution for Democratization 64

2.3 Approaches to Analyze Transformation as Dynamics of State-Society Relations 72

2.3.1 Critical Assessment of the Concepts of Neo-patrimonialism and the Rent-seeking State..... 73

2.3.2 The Concept of Stateness and the State-in-Society Approach 77

2.3.3 Concepts of Civil Society from a Liberal Perspective..... 80

2.3.4 Considerations on Civil Society and State from a Critical Political Economy Perspective..... 87

2.4 Towards a Comprehensive Analytical Concept of Transformation 94

3 Survey of Transformation in Africa with Focus on Socio-political Dimensions 103

3.1 Authoritarian Systems in Africa 104

3.1.1 Influences of the Cold War on African Political Systems 105

3.1.2 Challenges for African Political Systems on Gaining Independence ... 107

3.1.3 State-Society Relations under Authoritarian Rule..... 113

3.2 Patterns of Transformation in Africa 122

3.2.1 Popular Protest and Political Liberalization 122

3.2.2	Persistence and Change of Governments and the Challenges for Oppositions	128
3.2.3	Hesitant Institutional Reforms	133
3.3	Political Culture in Africa.....	144
3.3.1	Political Culture from a Local Perspective	144
3.3.2	Political Culture in a National Perspective	148
3.3.3	African Discourses on Changing Political Culture	152
3.4	Implications for the Case Study on Tanzania	153
4	Sites and Methodology of Research	157
4.1	General Background on Tanzania and the Sites of the Case Study	158
4.1.1	Economic Structure	162
4.1.2	Social Structure and Political Orientations in 1995.....	171
4.2	Method of Field Research.....	180
4.2.1	Procedure	180
4.2.2	The Question of Benefits from Research.....	182
4.2.3	Shifting the Research Focus	184
4.3	Data Analysis and Limits of Research.....	186
5	Patterns of Rule and Political Participation in Tanzania 1961-90.....	191
5.1	Colonial Heritage and Changes after Independence	191
5.1.1	Institutional Change and Continuity	196
5.1.2	Social Structure in the Rural Areas	201
5.2	Political Participation in the Era of Ujamaa	202
5.2.1	Relations between Peasants and Government	204
5.2.2	Continued Power Struggles between Central and Local Governments.....	205
5.2.3	'Decentralization'	207
5.2.4	At the Height of the One-Party State	212
5.3	Economic Crisis and Policy Reversal.....	215
5.3.1	Causes of the Economic Crisis and Attempts to Overcome It.....	216
5.3.2	Re-introduction of Local Government.....	221
5.3.3	Problems of Local Government during the 1980s	226
5.3.4	Constitutional Debate and Reforms and the National Elections of 1985	232
5.4	Socio-economic Liberalization.....	234
5.4.1	Economic Policy under Mwinyi	235
5.4.2	Forms of Social and Political Action in the 1980s	239

6	Departure from Authoritarian Rule: The Tanzanian Way	245
6.1	Steps towards Disentangling Party and State	246
6.1.1	CCM under Reform Pressure.....	248
6.1.2	Constitutional Amendments	250
6.1.3	Legislation for Political Parties and Elections.....	251
6.2	Elections in the Multi-Party System up to 2000	253
6.2.1	The First Local Elections.....	253
6.2.2	The Presidential and Parliamentary Elections in 1995	255
6.2.3	The Neighbourhood and Village Council Elections in 1999	258
6.2.4	The National and District Council Elections in 2000	263
6.2.5	The Elections in 2005	280
6.3	Development of the Political Parties	281
6.3.1	CCM	283
6.3.2	NCCR-Mageuzi and TLP	259
6.3.3	CUF	302
6.3.4	UDP	305
6.4	Assessment of the Political Culture of the Parties.....	307
7	Power Shifts between Political Institutions: The Stony Path to Devolution	313
7.1	Rural Citizens' Criticism of State Performance in the Fields of Security and Social Infrastructure	318
7.2	The Local Government Reform Programme	326
7.3	Taxes and Budgets.....	331
7.3.1	Central Government Finance	331
7.3.2	Local Government Finance.....	333
7.4	Political Institutions at Village Level	343
7.4.1	The Village Chairperson.....	345
7.4.2	The Kitongoji Leader and Relations to the Ten-cell Leader.....	346
7.4.3	The Village Council.....	348
7.4.4	The Village Assembly	355
7.4.5	Government Officers at Village Level	364
7.5	Political Institutions at District Level	366
7.5.1	Relations between Councillors and Government Officers	368
7.5.2	Councillors and their Electorate	379
7.6	Institutionalized Connections between Citizens and Central Government.....	385
7.6.1	The President: A Powerful Institution of Central Rule.....	386

7.6.2	The Member of Parliament - an Institution between Self-interest, Patronage, and Democratic Representation	389
7.6.3	Regional and District Commissioners - Political Institutions Losing Power?	396
7.7	Obstacles to Devolution.....	408
8	Dynamics of Civil Society.....	417
8.1	Socio-economic and Socio-cultural Groups	418
8.1.1	Income-generating Groups	419
8.1.2	Micro-credit Groups	425
8.2	Cooperatives	436
8.2.1	Export Crop Marketing Cooperatives.....	438
8.2.2	Cooperatives for the Domestic Market.....	451
8.2.3	Savings and Credit Cooperatives.....	454
8.2.4	Cooperatives as Social Organizations	455
8.3	Trade Unions	457
8.4	Business and Trade Associations.....	460
8.5	Religious Organizations.....	469
8.6	Non-governmental Organizations.....	478
8.6.1	NGOs with Focus on Development in Rural Districts of Tanzania.....	481
8.6.2	Relations of District-based NGOs with the Government	491
8.6.3	Nationwide NGOs	595
8.7	Carriers of Public Discourse	501
8.8	The Structure of Tanzanian Civil Society.....	505
9	Changing Relations between Rural Citizens and State: An Actor-oriented Approach to Analyzing Transformation	511
9.1	Land Conflicts during Political and Economic Transformation.....	512
9.2	Governmental Interventions in Land Matters.....	531
9.3	Options for Action and the Use of Democratic Means in Resolving Land Conflicts	543
9.4	Trends in Political Culture and the Rule of Law	549
10	Views on Democracy and the Multi-Party System	553
10.1	Results of Afrobarometer Political Culture Surveys	554
10.2	Rural Citizens' Views on Democracy and Explanations Based on Qualitative Research.....	556

11 Theoretical Outcomes and Conclusion575

References..... 593

Annex

A Maps 625

B Interview Partners and Groups 629

C Guidelines for Interviews..... 630

D Questions of Tanzanian Interview Partners 631